Young leaders eager to create a better world

TAKE a good look at these faces — they are the Peninsula’s leaders of tomorrow.

They have put their hands up to be part of Queensland’s first KidsGive Kids Advisory Team.

During the next two years, Year 5 and 6 pupils from Clontarf Beach and Humptydoo state schools, and Southern Cross Catholic College, will take on projects to make a difference.

KidsGive founder and Clontarf resident Sean Gordon said the organisation aimed to give children tools to be leaders and make them optimistic about the future.

“We use giving as a vehicle for changing the lives of kids by enabling them to change the lives of others,” Mr Gordon said.

The Peninsula group had its first meeting last month and members will now go back to their schools and come up with projects.

They will then work with facilitator Sandra Ventura to develop a campaign to make them happen.

Projects could range from supporting a local cause to providing aid to a school overseas.

The pupils are hoping businesses will provide boardrooms for their meetings and will be calling for community support once they get started.

To help out, email sandra3010@yahoo.com.au

For a longer version of this story and more pictures, queensland.com.au/news